

Kathy Huckleberry

“Natural Ceramic Visions”

Kathy lives on Samish Island in Skagit County Washington with her husband Mike. Kathy is an emerging artist who is now finding time to pursue her artistic interests after scaling back from a full-time career as a Database Specialist for IBM and other large corporations.

Kathy's pieces are influenced by the 19th and 20th century artists who distilled compositions into simpler shapes and colors, focusing on key elements to create a harmonious image. Her pieces combine hand made tile with applied three dimensional sculptural elements to convey depth and visual interest. Incorporated into her work are custom mixed glazes and fused glass which further add to the dimensionality.

Visit Kathy's website to see more of her work:

www.naturalceramicvisions.com

Marsh Heron, 2011

Kathy is active in the Skagit County arts community. She helps to organize the biannual Samish Island Arts Festivals, is on the Board of Directors of Skagit Artists Together (SAT), and is a member of Cascade Clay Artists and Skagit Arts Association. Kathy is also the 2011 SAT Studio Tour Chair.

If you are interested in a custom project or a completed work, please contact Kathy at:

ceramicvisions@nwfirst.com

Dragonfly Raku White Crackle Vase, 2010